government going to impose new taxes on tobacco products, which will increase the cost of cigarettes and other tobacco products. The government is expected to announce the new rates on Monday.

The new taxes are part of a broader effort to reduce smoking in the country. The government has been increasingly began to take measures to combat the epidemic of smoking, which has been a major health problem in the country.

The new rates will be based on the existing tax structure, which includes a 5% excise tax on tobacco products. The government is expected to increase the excise tax to 7%, while also introducing a new tax on the sale of cigarettes.

The new taxes are expected to generate an additional $100 million in revenue for the government each year. This money will be used to fund public health initiatives and support smoking cessation programs.

The government has been working with the tobacco industry to find a way to soften the impact of the new taxes. The industry has threatened to sue the government if it goes ahead with the plan.

The new rates are expected to take effect on Monday, June 20.

In other news, the government has announced that it will begin phasing out the use of plastic bags in grocery stores. The ban will begin on July 1, and the government plans to completely eliminate plastic bags by the end of the year.

The ban is expected to generate an additional $50 million in revenue for the government, which will be used to fund environmental initiatives.

The government has been working on this issue for several years, and the ban is expected to be widely supported by the public.

The government has also announced plans to improve public transportation in the country. The government plans to invest $1 billion in new buses and trains over the next five years.
