

The Department of Political Studies at Bar Ilan University is pleased to invite you to the workshop

Prejudice and Discrimination in Society and Politics: Political Science Meets Psychology

Tuesday, 11.6.2019 | 15:30-19:15 | Beck Hall, Bar Ilan University

Registration Link

*Is prejudice a natural group-based phenomenon or an indication of an "ill" society?
What are the functions of discrimination for groups, societies and political systems?*

Increasing prejudice, discrimination and social exclusion are some of the central challenges that Western countries currently face. Gaining a deeper understanding of these phenomena requires multi-perspective, interdisciplinary and innovative approach. This workshop will address the ways in which integrating psychological and political perspectives can help increase our understanding of these phenomena, as well as to construct more effective interventions to promote social inclusion.

Speakers will be leading scholars in political science and psychology from Israel and abroad.

*The workshop will be held in English

15:00-15:30 Gathering and refreshments

15:30-15:45 Greetings

Prof. Rami Ginat, Department of Political Studies, Bar Ilan

Dr. Julia Elad-Strenger, Department of Political Studies, Bar Ilan

15:45-17:15 Panel I: Discrimination, exclusion and their social functions

Moderator: Prof. Daphna Canetti, School of Political Sciences, Haifa University

Prof. Eran Halperin, Baruch Ivcher
School of Psychology, Interdisciplinary Center (IDC), Herzliya

Prof. Jonathan Rynhold, Department of
Political Studies, Bar Ilan

Prof. Jonathan Fox, Department of Political Studies, Bar Ilan

Dr. Anna Kende, Department of Social Psychology, Eötvös
Loránd University, Budapest

17:15-17:45 Coffee Break

17:45-19:15 Panel II: Privilege and disadvantage:

Power struggles in Israeli society

Moderator: Dr. Julia Elad-Strenger, Department of Political Studies, Bar Ilan

Prof. Dani Filc, Department of Politics and Government, Ben Gurion University

Prof. Nurit Shnabel, Department of Psychology, Tel Aviv University

Dr. Sivan Hirsch Hoefler, Lauder
School of Government, Diplomacy
& Strategy, Interdisciplinary Center
(IDC), Herzliya

Ms. Nora Lantos, Department of Social Psychology, Eötvös Loránd
University, Budapest